

Bravida Norway supplies electrical and telecoms installations at a railway station outside Trondheim for approximately NOK 21 million

Bravida Norway has been commissioned by Baneservice to carry out electrical and telecoms installation work for the upgrading and extension of Stjørdal railway station in Trøndelag for Bane NOR.

The project is part of the upgrading of the Trønderbanen railway line, which will improve public transport by enabling more train services. Bravida's assignment involves low-voltage and telecommunications installations, including low-voltage switchgear, lighting masts, culvert lighting, and telecommunications and fibre infrastructure.

“We are looking forward to contributing to a project that strengthens public transport in the region and improves connectivity in Trøndelag. It is a very exciting project in terms of the technology, and suits us well,” comments Øystein Ramsøskar, Regional Manager for Region Midt at Bravida Norway.

Anders Tidemand-Johannessen, Project Manager at Baneservice, comments:

“We are very happy to have Bravida involved in this project. Bravida is a stable and experienced partner, and together we will deliver a solution with the required quality on time, in order to benefit train passengers and the development of rail traffic in Trøndelag.”

Baneservice is the main contractor for the project, with Bane NOR as the client. Bravida's work in the project will start in spring 2026, with planned handover to Bane NOR in autumn 2027.
